Mrs. A. C. Keesling Funeral Services Observed Saturday

Funeral services for a much-loved friend of the community, Mrs. Ariadne Keesling, wife of A. C. Keesling, were held Saturday afternoon at the W. B. Ward parlors, with interment at the Oak Hill cemetery. Large numbers of Mrs. Keesling's friends gathered, and beautiful flowers were sent, in tribute to her memory.

J. O. Hayes officiated at the services. Pallbearers were members of the Orchard City Grange, long-time friends and co-workers with the family: W. H. Woodbury, Stanley B. Smith, H. V. Archibald, E. K. Clendenning, Gilbert Newcomb, and Harry Barnes.

Mrs. Keesling was a resident of the valley for 60 years; she was born in North Carolina Feb. 11, 1860, and came to California with her parents in 1872. They were among the first residents of the Berryessa district. She died suddenly of heart trouble, at her home on Johnson and Hamilton avenues Thursday night. Her friends, who knew her best in Grange and W. C. T. U. activities, mourn her deeply.

Besides her husband, A. C. Keesling, Mrs. Keesling left a brother, Iven V. Hobsen, Watsonville, and four children, Mrs. George L. Husted, Mervyn Keesling, Mrs. E. A. Abbott, San Jose, and Mrs. Frederick Kunzel of San Diego. Ten grandchildren survive: Betty B.,W. Reynold, Mona May, Robert L., and David M. Keesling, Wilton, Curtis, Audrey Edna, and Richard Abbott, and Norman Alva Husted.

Adventists Form Campbell Church

A Seventh Day Adventist church has been organized in the Campbell district and will hold regular Saturday morning services at the Campbell Community hall under the leadership of Evangelist J. Officers elected by the new church organization are Rudolph Schaeffer, San Jose, elder; F. H. Martin, San Jose, and Ralph Anderson, Burbank, deacons; Mrs. G. Hinch, Burbank, and Mrs. T. F. Mahaffey, San Jose, deaconesses; Bert Gerrans, Campbell, treasurer; Mrs. Bert Gerrans, Campbell, clerk; Mrs. C. J. Ritchie, Willow Glen, home missionary leader; Mrs. Aleta Allen, San Jose, home missionary secretary; Miss Florence Nagel, Campbell, organist.

C. of C. To Discuss Campbell Avenue Extension Tuesday

A high road which will lure tourists and traders into the Campbell shopping district is the plan of the local chamber of commerce and will be discussed at the regular meeting of that body Tuesday night, Jan. 3.

S. N. Hedegard, chairman of the road committee, will report results of the movement to continue Campbell avenue west to the Prospect road.

This extension, according to Herbert M. Shadle, president of the chamber of commerce, will enable western district ranchers to shop in the more accessible Campbell instead of in distant San Jose. Further, it will connect Campbell more directly with the main highways from San Francisco to the coast.

Other methods of advertising the Campbell community to passing autoists will be discussed at the Tuesday meeting. Signs on all highways leading into the business district will be particularly emphasized.

In addition, regular routine business will be transacted Tuesday night. All persons interested in the welfare and development of Campbell are urged to appear at the community hall at 8 p. m.

Grange to Give Harvest Feast January 10

A harvest feast, to be held in conjunction with initiation ceremonies for the third and fourth degrees, was scheduled for January 10 at 6:30 p.m. by members of the Orchard city grange at their regular meeting Tuesday night.

S. N. Hedegard was appointed chairan of the function by Worthy Master W. H. Woodbury. Mr. Hedegard named as co-workers E. K. Clendenning, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Barnes, Fred Hubback and W. C. Stickle. The committee promises a delicious dinner and an entertaining evening for Grange members and their guests.

A new member, E. A. Price, received the obligation for the third and fourth degrees Tuesday night and was welcomed by the Grange members.

Visiting Grangers, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Lott, master and lecturer of the Whitmore lodge, described the work of the Grange in their community.

Honoring the memory of Mrs. A. Keesling, who was a long-loved member of the Grange, Mrs. Lawrence Hendricks, Ceres, and Mrs. Robert Parkhill, chaplain, assisted by members, draped the Grange charter with black crepe.

Mrs. George Husted was elected secretary of the organization, to fill the late Mrs. Keesling's place.

Grange Officers Will Be Installed At Pomona Grange

Relief Committee Delivers 72 Christmas Boxes of Food

"The Man's the Boss," Says Judge, as Bride Rebels at "Obey"

Nevada City, Dec. 29—(UP)—Judge Walter L. Mobley doesn't believe in these newfangled marriage ceremonies.

Officiating at the recent wedding of Walter Warren Rolin, 65, and Mrs. Regina Adele Ward, 40, the judge refused to comply with the request of the bride-to-be that the word "obey" be omitted from the ceremony.

After a few minutes of strained silence Mrs. Ward permitted the ceremony to go on, obey and all.

Husted Family Hold Christmas Day Reunion

Forty members of the Husted family gathered at the community hall Monday to participate in their annual family reunion which commemorates the settling of the late Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Husted in Saratoga in 1889.

Brothers and sisters and their children and grandchildren enjoyed a turkey dinner ably prepared by Harry White, local caterer and restauranteur.

After dinner everyone gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph H. Hyde, Alice avenue, to spend an afternoon and evening in visiting, playing games, and singing Christmas carols.

Letters from relatives of Mrs. Hyde in Illinois and telegrams from other relatives unable to attend, offering season's greetings to all, were read to the gathering.

Participating in this happy affair were: Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Hope, Oakland; Mr. and Mrs. Howarth, Lois Howarth and Graham Allen, San Francisco; Prof. and Mrs. Buford Brown, Betty, Robert and Ann Brown, Stanford university; Dr. and Mrs. Frederick Husted, Mr. and Mrs. Leon S. Miller, Miss Emma Miller, Judge and Mrs. F. B. Brown, Miss Edith Husted, Mrs. W. F. Curry and Miss Mildred Curry, San Jose; Dr. and Mrs. G. B. Husted, Modesto; Otis E. Mrs. W. I. Merrill Aided By Merchants, Clubs

If there is a "forgotten man" in Campbell and environs it is not the fault of the Campbell relief committee. Exactly 72 families, including over 200 persons, in the Campbell school district, received large boxes of food and living necessities as a Christmas present, as the result of the work of Mrs. W. I. Merrill and her assistants on the local relief council.

Working day and night for weeks before the holidays, Mrs. Merrill and the members of her committee prepared large boxes of grocery orders which were delivered last week by local merchants.

Three varieties of boxes were distributed. To county indigents, who receive a weekly county order, a supplementary order, including meat, was given. To others were taken generous, workable orders, containing staple products, a large meat order, and jellies, jams, apples and oranges. In some cases, where a need was indicated, wearing apparel and bedding was included in the box.

Merchants and organizations of the town showed a splendid spirit of cooperation in this work. The merchants all gave liberally toward the filling of the grocery orders. On Saturday evening Carl B. Field and Horace Lea, assisted by young men of the district, delivered vegetables donated by local grocers to many needy families living in the Campbell district.

Churches, clubs, fraternal organizations, and private donors, worked earnestly to make the task easier, according to Mrs. Merrill. They consulted with the central committee, the relief club of the Campbell council, who held a list of names of needy families, before preparing orders. Thus, through cooperation, there were very few duplications and the work could be done more thoroughly. If any deserving person was passed by, Mrs. Merrill says, it was because the case was not known.

Organizations which furnished aid, thus making possible this.

Current Comment

Some weeks ago we remarked, in these columns, the benefits of the depression. We rather flattered ourselves on our comprehensive survey. Now we find that we had missed the most important of the many advantages: Public health.

The health of the general public right now is better than it has been at any time since the national bureau of vital statistics was founded. That is indeed encouraging, and some of the causes are:

Food and drink are consumed in smaller quantities. The general speed of living has been reduced through various causes. Enforced idleness is good for suffers and potential sufferers of tuberculosis, kidney trouble, high blood pressure, etc., and the lower mortality rate is due to fewer pleasure and business vehicles on the roads, the fact that less industrial machinery is in operation, and, in the case of infant mortality, fewer births due to control of people who feel that they cannot afford children until times improve.

Another item of interest in current world affairs is the refusal of the French government to pay to the United States $20,000,000, due on the war debt.

The French, in refusing to honor the signature of their government, have laid themselves open open to severe criticism from many quarters, chief of which is, of course, the United States. Even at home, French statesmen of vision decry the "destruction of national credit through the refusal to pay" the much mooted and comparatively paltry sum of $20,000,000.

Certainly, if this is a step toward actual repudiation of their war debt, the French will lose the friendship of the United States, as well as the credit they have enjoyed in this country.

In the opinion of this journal, such a state of affairs is eminently desirable for this reason: France is heavily armed and laboring under the same delusion that at one time possessed the brain of Wilhelm of Germany, and is just about as popular in Europe today as was Germany in 1914. When the trouble starts, the United States will owe no allegiance to martial France. We will be called on for no money. They will have no claim on the youth of our land, and they will have to fight their own way out of the difficulties their present attitude is likely to project them into. This will be a blessing.

England, on the other hand, paid. Desirous of remaining on good terms with the United States, both from a credit standpoint and with a view of retaining this country as a possible ally in times of war, Great Britain, more thoroughly war torn than all other nations except Germany, kept its word. France, not nearly so completely devastated as they would have the world believe, has already received raw materials from Germany in excess of all the damage sustained in the world war; yet they find themselves "unable to pay."

The effects of this decision are likely to be far reaching, and will be watched with interest not alone by outsiders, but by the French cabinet which resigned following the refusal of the government to meet its obligations.

The "beer by Christmas" hope of the wets failed to materialize, and now it looks like a long, hard pull. In the next legislature there will probably be railroaded through a bill providing beer, but the dry organization will be right on top of it. They will, unless the 18th amendment is repealed, have the beer legislation declared unconstitutional, and get out an injunction against the brewers. No beer by next Christmas, is our bet.

Neck Is Safe In Industry, State Survey Reveals

Sacraento, Dec. 29—(UP)—Not ail Californians are like Achilles, who, legend tells us, had only one vulnerable spot—and that was his heel.

Take a peek at an anatomical accident chart in the state department of industrial relations, recording the 11-month experience of a plant in which there were 644 accidents.

It showed: Fingers, 112; eyes, 108; hands, 60; legs, 51; feet, 48; back, 46; arms, 35; body, 29; face, 28; scalp, 26; wrists, 24; knees, 17; groins, 15; ankles, 13; shoulders, 13; toes, 12; ears, 6, and neck, 1.

Finger and eye injuries led by a wide margin, it was noted. Ears were comparatively safe, while only one person got it in the neck.

Sacramento Man Sleeps Peacefully Atop Dynamite Box

Sacramento, Dec. 29—(UP)—Sleeping night after night in a bed under which had been placed dynamite enough to blow him to the moon wasn't even a thrill for Wm. Crewe.

But fighting a jail sentence on charges that he had stolen the blasting powder from the government was a different matter. It had Crewe really worried.

Crewe testified he had bought the powder from a strange miner and had put it under his bed to "keep it warm and dry."

Federal Judge A. F. St. Sure said: "Not guilty."

Methodist Church Celebrates Yule With Party, Pageant

Christmas was ushered in with much merriment in the local Methodist church, when the Sunday school held its annual Christmas party Friday night, Dec. 23.

Recitations, songs, and a pretty play preceded a Christmas party and the visit from Santa Claus.

The primary classes, under the direction of Mrs. C. C. Byrnes, won much applause for a group of exercises and recitations. An exercise was given by Giles Kennedy, Carol Jean Kennedy, Carol Lantz, and Dora Belle Bernaidasci. "The Manger Song" was sweetly sung by all the primary children.

Little Carol Jean Kennedy played a piano solo,"SilentNight."Recitations were given by Claude Grizzle, Geraldine Lloyd, Berniece Bernaidasci, Neal Kennedy, Tommy Nichols, Junie Doolin, and Irwin McVey.

The junior and senior members of the Sunday school presented a singularly moving play, "The Light of the World." Depicting a scene at the inn, where the little Jesus was born, it showed the love of a little blind girl for the tiny baby and her remarkable cure when she touched him.

Characters in the play were: Harold Cramer, Joseph; Carol Clay, Mary; Philip Farley, Norman McVey, David Saveker, and Willis Greene, shepherds; Alberta Lantz, inkeeper's wife; Claribelie Willis, her little blind daughter; Marian Clay, an angel; Dorothea Willis, Ruth Hocking, Irene Clay, Yvonne Stubbe, Betty Best, Sylvia Best, and Madeleine Byrnes, handmaidens of the innkeeper's wife; Jean Willis, Mildred McVey, Dorothy Weeks, Doris Smith, and LaVerne Brown, friends of the little blind girl.

THE FARMERS CORNER

By Ralph H. Taylor

In times of economic distress, when city streets are crowded with jobless, America still turns back to the farm—reaching for the security of food and shelter, regardless of profits.

Such is the story to be gleaned from the latest report of the United States Bureau of Agricultural Economics, tracing the ebb and flow of population during the current year.

America's farm population, according to the federal farm bureau, is swinging rapidly toward "new high," with indications that 32,000,000 people will be living on farms by the start of the new year, closely bordering the peak farm population of 32,077,000 in 1910.

At the rate of increase established during the forepart of the year, the net gain in farm population during 1932 will top the million mark. And the increases of this year, taken with the gains during 1930 and 1931, will more than offset the decrease of 1,500,000 in farm population which occurred during the preceeding ten years.

One of the curiosly human sidelights of the report, supporting the ancient adage that "Distant pastures are always greenest," is that farm people continue to move cityward at a time when city people are most anxious to get "back on the farm."

During the first three months of the year, for instance, 432,000 farmers moved to the city. And during the same period, 564,000 urbanites shifted to rural America. The farm population, for this quarter, made a net gain of 132,000 by the exchange and increased 131,000 additional by excess of births over deaths.

There is much of tragedy and despair in this shifting population—farmers unable to hold their property, clutching at the hope of a new start in the cities, and city dwellers, unable to find employment, turning to the farm for food and lodging.

While it is impossible to forecast, with any certainty, the final result of this criss-crossing migration, there is some definite indication that the depression will have the effect of increasing America's rural population for many years to come.

The rapid mechanization of industry in the cities, entirely separate from the effects of the disturbed economic condition, is one of the factors which is tending to swell farm population. Yet American agriculture has been over-produced in most branches since the end of the war and is probably incapable of absorbing the city- excess of workers without further increasing over-production.

In the meantime, farm colonization schemes to relieve unemployment, should not be entered into hurriedly or without full consideration of the consequences.

The new trend, according to certain indications, would seem to point to greater diversification in agriculture to make the farmer less dependent on cash income from the cities and more self-sufficient on his own farm. There is one major obstacle to such a program at the present time, however, this being the ever increasing necessity for cash to defray growing tax requirements.

It becomes increasingly apparent that agriculture and urban industry are so closely interlocked that there can be no permanent correction of the farm problem until the necessary readjustments have taken place.

Marysville Editor Kids Will Rogers Gets Dinner Guest

Marysville, Dec. 29—(UP)—Will Rogers will be a guest of the California Newspaper Publishers' association at its annual convention here January 20, 21 and 22—all because an editor "kidded" the humorist and got a rise out of him.

The editor is Horace E. Thomas of the Marysville Appeal-Democrat who printed an editorial wondering why Rogers made his airplane trip to South America just at the time the recent presidential campaign was the hottest.

He hinted that maybe the syndicate that employs Rogers had received a lot of kicks from papers "whose political corns" had been stepped on.

So Rogers wrote to Thomas as follows:

"You notice I was back here in plenty of time to get into plenty of arguments. The New York Times let out some of my articles because they were not in favor of the Democrats, and the San Francisco Chronicle got letters of kicks about what I said against the Republicans, so I must not have been so biased after all.

"No sir, don't you worry about Mr. Rogers. I will do and say what I please as long as I think it's fair. truthful and entertaining. I owe allegiance to no one. I am the worst writer in the world,but none are more independent. What is your paper, anyhow, Democrat or Republican? And where is your town. I will come and see you some time."

Editor Thomas was out of town when Rogers' letter arrived, and it was a few days before it was printed. Meanwhile he got a telegram from Will, saying:

"Why didn't you print the letter I wrote you and tell 'em nobody sends me anywhere or dictates to me what to write. I will come up there if I am in the country and not making a picture, so remind me later."

So, both by letter and editorial, Thomas "reminded" the humorist that he was wanted in Marysville, particularly for the annual dinner of the association on the night of Saturday, Jan. 21. And he is assured that Rogers will be there, acts of God and "shooting" of movies permitting.

In his editorial, however, Thomas commented as follows:

"There was one line in Mr. Rogers' letter that we cannot quite forgive. That was his inquiry, 'Where is your town?' Shades of history! Why, Marysville, Mr. Rogers, was the center of the greatest gold exploration that the United States has known. At a time when Claremore, Okla., was still in possession of the Aborigines, and since then, Marysville, with its neighbor, Yuba City, has become an exceptionally progressive community, in one of the most productive agricultural regions of your adopted state.

Adventists Give Dinner Monday To Unemployed

Introducing a series of health cooking classes, the local Seventh Day Adventist church members will give a dinner Monday, Jan. 2, at 1 p. m., at which a large number of Campbell's unemployed will be invited guests.

He promises the following menu: cream of lentil soup, combination salad, mock turkey (roast), mashed potatoes and gravy, string beans, pumpkin pie and whipped cream, Vita coffee (cereal drink), soy bean bread and 100 per cent whole wheat bread. The health breads are donated by the Martin Cooky company of San Jose.

The dinner, J. Lee Neil, pastor of the church, announces, is designed to create an interest in health-cooking classes which are to especially emphasize the economic phase of cooking, to teach persons how to get more calories per penny and to teach vegeterian cooking.

Everyone interested in the cooking school is invited to attend and should call Mrs. J. Lee Neil, at Campbell 95 to make arrangements. The health-cooking classes are furnished free.
